Lecture 01: Processes

Operating Systems

What is a process?

- A process is a program in execution.
- It has its own address space, registers and program counter.

Process states

- new, ready, running, waiting, terminated
- The scheduler moves processes from ready to running.

Process Control Block (PCB)

- Stores state, program counter, registers, open files.
- A context switch saves one PCB and loads another.